Box Office Revenue by Market

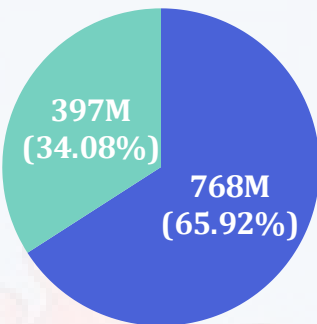

● Other Markets ● US_Canada

Pixar's earnings dropped in 2020 and 2022 during COVID-19, when movie budgets were higher than the money made. But in 2024, things got better as Inside Out 2 made a record $1.7 billion. About 59.33% of that money came from international markets, more than what came from the U.S. and Canada.

Average Budget by Year

In 2006, Disney bought Pixar for $7.4 billion. After that, Pixar movies started getting much bigger budgets, sometimes up to $100 million more than before. Also Pixar has earned more from its franchise films than its standalone movies. On average, films that are part of a series generate higher revenue, showing the strong fan base and popularity of sequels like Toy Story, Incredibles, and Finding Nemo.

Top 5 Successful films

Financial Failures

Based on how much money each film made compared their budget, Toy Story 1 was the most successful, followed by Finding Nemo and Inside Out. Even though Inside Out made the most profit, Toy Story 1 had a higher return because it cost much less to make because it was created at a better period economically. Soul and Onward experienced financial failures.

Andrew Stanton has helped earn about $2 billion from films he directed and around $3 billion from the Pixar movies he worked on, making him one of Pixar's top contributors. His work on WALL-E, the Finding Nemo series, and the Toy Story movies played a big role in Pixar's success. He's followed by Michael Giacchino, who also had a major impact with his work.

Evolution of Public Responses

In 2011, Cars 2 was released and got negative reviews across movie websites like Metacritic and IMDb, but the harshest reactions came from Rotten Tomatoes. Many critics felt the film focused too much on action and the character Mater (the rusty goofy tow truck), instead of continuing the heartwarming story from the first Cars movie — which disappointed fans and critics alike.

Total Nomination by year

Between 2001 and 2020, Pixar received 57 total award nominations – but only 29% of them turned into actual wins during that time. Pixar's films are mostly recognized for their legacy of Best Animated Feature nominations. Total nominations per year appear to be declining over time, with WALL-E receiving the most (6) nominations so far.
